The Biograph picture to-day at Dreamland measures up to the high standard this company usually puts out. "The Rag Race" is a foreign picture of some men on carnival day having a bag race. Many funny things happen to them. The last scene shows them struggling in the river. Burlesque's song is well suited to his voice, and is especially pleasing to hearers.

The Bijou's strong feature to-day is an I. M. P. picture. "Transfusion" is the title. It is one of the most startling pictures seen lately. A sensational operation is performed by a noted specialist right in plain view, that of transfusion of the blood of one person to another to save his life. It is one of the most difficult operations known to science. The Mexican picture is also meritorious. The song is excellent.
